DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1-4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Jones (US006118878A)

Regarding claims 1, 3, 4, Jones discloses a method for automatically reducing noises in an earphone using an audio transceiver; the audio transceiver including an audio transmitter (speaker 22), an audio auto-adjusting module (the active noise canceling module for example as shown in 310 in Fig. 3), an audio amplifying module (1806s as shown in Fig. 18 for example), an audio detecting and receiving module (microphone 28), a power set (batteries) and an manual adjusting button (col. 23, lines 24-26); the method comprising the steps of:

receiving external interference audio signals in the audio detecting and receiving module of the audio transceiver (by microphone 28);

generating mixing frequency signals in the audio auto-adjusting module (to speaker); the mixing frequency signals having frequencies near the frequencies of the external interference audio signal; a phase difference of about 180 degree from the interference audio signal and amplitudes approximately equal to those of the external interference audio signals (col. 10, lines 14-21); transferring the mixing frequency signals to the audio amplifying module (1806s) for amplifying the mixing frequency signals; and transmitting the amplified mixing frequency signals by the audio transmitter so as to cancel the external interference audio signals.

Regarding claim 2, by adjusting the manual adjusting button serves to adjust the mixing frequency signals emitted from the right or left ears, the balance the sound pressures in the two ears of the user is inherently adjusted.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claim 5 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Jones.

Regarding claim 5, Jones fails to explicitly show the location of the manual adjusting button. Jones teaches a general earphone with active noise cancellation and manual volume control. However, based on the teaching of Jones, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to place the manual adjusting button at any location, including at one side of the earphone, which is convenient for the user to perform the adjustment. Examiner takes Official Notice that this feature is notoriously well known in the art.
